

Evolution versus Creation Debate Points to The coming of the Lord

Joshua O. Ojo

Many people think that the Evolution versus Creation debate is a mere idle academic exercise. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The Evolution-Creation issue is central to every aspect of life – how it is lived and what to make of it – both today and hereafter. As we shall show in this article, it is one of the major pillars propping up the emerging New World Order designed to usher in the anti-Christ. In a nutshell, it is literally a question of life and death.

The Claims and the Stakes

While Evolution claims that everything in existence – the living and non-living world, including Man in particular – all arose (from nothing) by sheer accident, with no purpose or design for them (thus no Creator); Creation maintains that the world and its inhabitants arose by deliberate design and all have a sure purpose and destiny. Evolution and Creation are thus mutually exclusive with no chance at all of any reconciliation between them, as many vainly seek to do. It is either there is a Creator or not. That is the central issue and there is no midway about it.

It then immediately becomes obvious why a correct answer to the question of the Origin of all things in our Universe is very crucial. According to the Evolution model, things have always been getting better (evolving from chaos to more order), and will continue to do so till eternity without any input or supervision from some super Being. Even though the stated method of accomplishing this mind-boggling feat, Survival of the Fittest, involves death, treachery, and unimaginable pain for individuals, somehow on the global scale, things are supposed to keep getting better. So they say. And there just is no room for questions! Actually, the main reason Darwin propounded his evolution theory (and there were dozens others before him) is simply to get rid of God and reduce the Bible to nothing but a book of fables. For instance, if it is true indeed that living organisms have been living and dying (evolving) for billions of years before Man arrived planet earth, it would be trash to say that the concept of death came to the world through Man (i.e. Adam – see Rom 5:12), or that there is any need for a restoration to an initial all-good and perfect beginning (see Rom 8:18-23). The concept of salvation is hogwash with the doctrinaire evolutionist.

Having boldly declared the eternal Word of God to be a lie, the theory of evolution then recklessly goes on to suggest how life on earth should be lived to hasten the evolutionary process. There are two fundamental principles to it all. First, we are essentially no more than animals. So we are only doing what is natural when we live like them. Second is that different people could be at different levels of evolution, hence everybody should be free to determine their own standards. This of course also directly leads to the notion of race supremacy as applied by people like Adolf Hitler. Any student who has been in a psychology class can attest to the central place these notions play in defining the world view that is supposed to be the most healthy for us all. The concept of relativity, borrowed out-of-context from physics, implies that all morality and ethics are relative. In short there are no rights or wrongs. Most certainly there is nothing called 'sin'. The results on society of all this madness are quite predictable: murder (including abortion and euthanasia), drug culture, racism, breakdown in the family institution, various acts of sexual perversions, including bestiality, rape, etc. The more a society is "well enlightened" and receptive to evolutionism the more visible these vices are. And to date, 'serious' academic treatises continue to be published promising that in such liberty lies the continued evolution and advancement of our world. In the United States for instance, there is the National Man-Boy Love Association (NAMBLA) openly promoting homosexual relationships between adults and small boys. Homosexual relationships between adults have long ceased to be anything to frown at! Watch out, the National Education Research Council in Nigeria is currently reviewing the curriculum of both primary and secondary schools. It is very likely that evolution and its derivatives (sex education, self affirmation, earth-worship etc) will be given more prominence. Proud evolutionist, Jeremy Rifkin, in his book (Algeny, p 244) summarises the fruits that accompany evolution thinking:

"We no longer feel ourselves to be guests in someone else's home and therefore obliged to make our behaviour conform with a set of pre-existing cosmic rules. It is our creation now, we make the rules... We no longer have to justify our behaviour... We are responsible to nothing outside ourselves, for we are the kingdom, the power, and the glory for ever and ever"

Contrast all these with the fruits of the Creation model which affirms that a loving and caring Creator made all things in His infinite wisdom to have an eternal harmonious co-existence. And of course, that we shall all one day account for all we do here, in the body. This second aspect of the Creation model is what most evolutionists particularly do not want to hear!

But really, what is the Truth?

No matter how offended our sensibilities might be with the evolution theory, we will have no choice but to admit it, if it can be proven to be true, will we? The incredible fact is that there is no single evidence (scientific or otherwise) to support the evolution theory – which is why it is still a theory 142 years after. There is no space to discuss the scientific demerits of Evolution theory in this article. Though strictly speaking, Science has no way of addressing Origin issues, we can still test both the Evolution and Creation Models with current well-established Scientific principles and laws. Evolution encounters insurmountable difficulties when it attempts to explain how all we can see today could come out of nothing (contrary to the well-known scientific law of energy-mass conservation – 1st law of thermodynamics) or how things could move from less order (chaos) to more order without any intelligent input of energy (contrary to that most-established of all scientific laws, the second law of thermodynamics). Therefore, on Scientific grounds alone, Evolution is even inconceivable, talk less of its happening. Maybe if evolutionists could produce 'hard evidences', the scientific laws may have to be reviewed? But no, not a single evidence is available. Of the billions of fossils diligently excavated and studied, not a single one could be seen showing one species evolving to another. The "missing link" is still missing!

Let's just cite a simple example to illustrate the stupendous odds which the evolution theory is trying to brush aside. Imagine that the University library (the foundation, all the floors, the rooms, halls etc) together with the shelves, fans, air conditioners, and other furniture all came into existence all by itself without anybody making any design for it. (i.e. all the digging, concrete mixing, plastering, roofing were results of chance processes. Gushes of winds and other natural processes brought the materials together and some unknown processes did the mixing and brought about the growth). But all that is nothing yet. Add to that the possibilities that all the books, one after the other also evolved from small particles that came and bonded together, and somehow we have thousands of neatly bound volumes – all by chance. The odds for all these can be calculated, so theoretically, it is possible for it to happen. And evolutionists claim to believe that is exactly what happened. The problem no evolutionist alive has any idea how to even go about is how to compute the odds that these mere papers forming themselves into books by chance, should contain intelligent information! In short granted that by various capricious means this article you are reading is merely chance arrangement of impressions of ink over paper, how come it makes sense to you the reader? What is the origin of consciousness? Of life? We can go on ad infinitum to show how totally ridiculous evolution theory is. The Creation Model on the other hand perfectly accords with all known scientific laws and evidences. How can any rational human being ever believe in Evolution? The fact is that it takes a lot of 'education' to get people brainwashed to believe such non-sense. Scriptures says, "professing to be wise, they became fools" (Rom:1:22). As a matter of fact, no less prominent a person as Robert Muller, former Assistant Secretary General of the UN and the author of the World Core Curriculum (already adopted by the UN as the blueprint for the future of education everywhere in the world) has declared that the most important thing to accomplish in education is to make people believe in evolution. According to Muller, "I believe the most fundamental thing we can do today is to believe in evolution" (Quoted in The Modern Creation Trilogy vol 3, Institute for Creation Research, pg 127)

Before concluding this section, to preclude the reader from thinking that there must be some scientific points in the Creation-Evolution issue which we are hiding in this article, let's hear directly from two revered evolutionist scientists themselves. First Prof D.M. S. Watson, British zoologist: "The theory of evolution itself [is] a theory universally accepted not because it can be proved by logically coherent evidence to be true but because the only alternative, special creation, is clearly incredible (Nature, vol 124 (1929), p.233. Harvard's Nobel Laureate in Biology, Dr George Wald is even more blunt: "One has only to contemplate the magnitude of this task to concede that the spontaneous generation of a living organism is impossible. Yet here we are – as a result, I believe of spontaneous generation” (Scientific American, August, 1954).

Marching towards the Omega Point

The long and short of it all is that those who believe in Evolution are choosing this option, purely as a matter of faith, a religious faith. And usually, in reaction to Christianity. Since they do not want to believe in the existence of a personal God to whom all is accountable, they are putting all their hopes in an omnipotent Nature that can bring about the impossible and unexplainable. Ordinarily, there would be nothing wrong in a person's voluntarily choosing which god he would serve. The problem is the extent to which evolutionists go, in a desperate effort to achieve a measure of scientific respectability, to corrupt knowledge and attempt to becloud the things that can easily be known about God. Why did Teilhard de Chardin, Catholic priest and ideological father of the United Nations have to go to the extent of faking fossils to look like intermediates between Man and Apes! The so-called Piltdown man and several others like it (including several examples cited in textbooks) have been conclusively shown to be fakes, yet supporters of evolution theory only become more dogmatic instead of hiding their faces in shame!

In recent years (on October 22 1996) the evolution theory climbed to a new (and perhaps its final) pedestal when Pope John Paul II, declared that man indeed evolved from apes! (See virtually all international newspapers of the next day. Strangely, many Christians, including catholics, seem unaware of this development). While many were shocked that the Pope could ever give such an endorsement (thus effectively robbing the God he claims to represent of every attribute that makes Him God) those who are conversant with Scriptures know it is only an expected development. It represents but one clear sign of the times we are in. This new phase actually began ten years earlier, in October 1986 when the same Pope John Paul II called together over 100 leaders of various religions and spiritualities to pray together for World Peace. Soon it was agreed that all religions are actually out to bring peace and abundant life for mankind. There is no 'thief' anywhere trying to kill, steal or destroy. Indeed, there is no devil and no hell.

Every other religion, except Christianity/Judaism already accepts that all roads lead to God. So the challenge is to bring in Christianity into this new One World Religion. The main tool for accomplishing this arduous and unthinkable situation is the evolution theory. Not only is the Scriptures reduced to a fable book as we have seen earlier, the concept is taught that God Himself and His truth is evolving. For instance Christians are being massively inundated with 'revelations' and teachings (with signs and lots of dollars for sure), teaching that 'experience' and the 'moves of the Spirit' are to be valued far above 'mouldy truths' contained in the Written Word. One book that most blatantly pursued this course is the best-selling "God Chasers" by Tommy Tenney. Starting off with endorsements from 23 Pastors in the New Wave Movement, the book declared in the introduction that "Truth is where God's been, revelation is where God is". From the crucible of all these relativism has emerged the United Religious Initiative, an organization formally launched on June 26, last year.. Today, the new One World Religion is already a reality – and it is getting stronger. It brazenly teaches that the Pisces Age (supposedly representing Christianity) has gone with year 2000 and that the Aquarius Age (representing fulfilled humanity) is here. Thus the singular goal of most of the world's most-powerful people today is the evolution of mankind to the Omega point. At this stage, Man is expected to evolve into gods (compare with the lie in Gen 3:5) - a fact they believe will happen only when most people embrace the concept and give it their mental assent. This indeed will be the main selling pitch of the Antichrist when he is revealed. The reader can therefore only imagine what fury these very well organized and powerful world-wide network bears against Christians who continue to proclaim Jesus as the only one absolute Way to God!

As far back as around 1949, the pioneer Director General of UNESCO (the United Nations Agency in charge of education) and a foremost Evolutionist, Sir Julian Huxley has stated quite unequivocally what their goals are:

"Thus, the general philosophy of UNESCO should, it seems, be a scientific world humanism, global in extent and evolutionary in background..." (emphasis added)

He further explained what the ultimate goal is - a One World Religion and a One World Government:

"The unifying of traditions into a single common pool of experience, awareness and purpose is the necessary prerequisite for further major progress in human evolution. Accordingly, although political unification in some sort of world government will be required for the definitive attainment of this state, unification in the things of the mind is not only necessary also, but it can pave the way for other types of unification"

(Julian Huxley, "A New World Vision", in The Humanist, vol 39 March/April 1979, p 35. This paper was kept "in-house" by UNESCO for about 30 years before The Humanist was allowed to publish it).

Every Bible-Prophecy student knows that the One World Religion will be ushered in by the False Prophet and this in turn will speed up the actualization of the One World Government (Rev 13:11,14) All these have been prophesied in the Scriptures some 2000 years ago. That they are being manifested in our times should be clear indication to all who have eyes to see and ears to hear that the end is in sight. Would you merely fold your hands and watch your destiny swept off by evil men, or will you pick up your gear and be part of God's End Time Army?
